

Make the Sugar Program Work for America

Put Nest Eggs in Hardworking Americans' Easter Baskets with Sugar Reform

The federal government's sugar program may be lining Big Sugar's pockets, but it's costing American families, manufacturers and workers.

- While well-heeled U.S. sugar processors have their income guaranteed, hardworking Americans pay the price - $3 billion a year in the form of higher prices for sugar.
- And while these processors are shielded from competing in the global marketplace, businesses - especially small businesses - are at a competitive disadvantage with imported products from foreign countries.

Bottom Line: The government should not be picking winners and losers. The good news is Washington has an opportunity to save Americans' hard-earned dollars by reforming the sugar program to work for all of America, not just one special interest.

The Coalition for Sugar Reform is an alliance of consumers, food and beverage manufacturers, trade advocates, environmental groups, taxpayer watchdog organizations, responsible government advocates, think tanks and other interests. Our objective is to reform the federal government's intrusive, inefficient, restrictive and outdated sugar program - a decades-old subsidy that has repeatedly failed to provide adequate supplies of sugar to the U.S. market.
